CHAMBER AWARDS

Virtual program recognizes those who impacted community

BY BOB DEMAREE

Much like many other events throughout the COVID-19 pandemic, this year's Madison Area Chamber of Commerce held its 97th annual Chamber Dinner in a virtual format Wednesday to celebrate the accomplishments of its member businesses, and individuals who have made an impact on the community.

"Our members and community are the 'why' of what we do. It takes guidance, resources, energy, partnerships, relationship building and cheerleading to lift each other up in our successes, and support each other in times of need," said Executive Director,

JEFF GARRETT COMMUNITY SERVICE AWARD — MARY BETH BOONE

EMERGING LEADER AWARD — KELLEY HOAGLAND

SMALL BUSINESS PERSON OF THE YEAR — JERRY WADE

NONPROFIT OF THE YEAR — SUSAN STAHL, GIRLS INC.

Emilee Roberts. "The Chamber is dedicated to doing that for our members and community. We are excited to make 2021 the best it can be."

In addition to celebrating 2020's achievements, the Chamber presented five annual awards: the Jeff Garrett Community Service Award, the Business of the Year Award, the Small Business Person of the Year, and a new award, the Jefferson County Emerging Leader Award. These prestigious awards are given to those who demonstrate leadership, vision, innovation, and dedication to the Jefferson County Community.

The Jeff Garrett Community Service Award was presented to Mary Beth Boone for her philanthropy and leadership to Madison. "It brings so much happiness to my heart to be recognized as an advocate and volunteer for the City of Madison," Boone said. "I would like to thank the people who nominated me as well as my family who have always supported me in my time and allowing me to give back and do things for others. I've found to be very lucky in life people always

Yancey: Teachers should be higher priority for vaccine

BY BOB DEMAREE

COVID-19 vaccines are not yet available for teachers in Indiana, a point Madison Consolidated Schools board president Jodi Yancey spoke on at Wednesday's meeting of the school board.

"I am just a little bit disappointed in our state legislation that we are one of the very few states that are not vaccinating our teachers," Yancey said. "We want to be in school, our teachers want to be in school, the kids want to be in school, and they are not letting our teachers be vaccinated, which I just think is a travesty. I think it's terrible."

"Every state around us has got teachers in the first tier of being vaccinated. In Indiana, our teachers are in the last tier. If they are expecting them to go to work, and try to stay safe, it just irritates me. I am sorry to all of our teachers and our staff," she said adding, Madison teachers "have been working their tails off since last March to try to stay in school, and we have nothing. I am sorry that this is happening to them."

Superintendent Dr. Jeffrey Studebaker said he "tends to agree on that particular point. Strategically, it is not the correct play. And it's beyond strategic."

In Indiana, COVID-19 vaccines are currently available to Indiana residents 65 years or older, healthcare workers, first responders who are firefighters, police officers or sheriff's Above: A City of Madison Street Department truck plows snow Thursday while clearing downtown streets of the icy mixture that fell on Wednesday night, adding to the 6 inches of snowfall the area received on Monday. Most city streets were clear and dry by Thursday night, but the weather forecast is calling for more icy precipitation and extreme cold temperatures this weekend and into next week with up to two inches of snowfall predicted for Sunday and another 5.7 inches on Monday. Meanwhile, the projected high temperature on Sunday is 26 degrees with a low of 15, a high Monday of 18 with a low of 11 and a high of 21 and low of 5 on Tuesday.

Right: Although schools were canceled due to inclement weather, a worker was clearing snow and ice from the parking lot and sidewalks at Prince of Peace Schools on Madison's hilltop using a garden tractor and snow blade. That work could continue through the weekend into early next week as more snow and ice is forecast for Sunday and Monday followed by bitter cold temperatures.

LITTLE JOB

BY BOB DEMAREE

Construction of a new Jefferson County Jail took a big step forward Thursday night with the hiring of the project's construction manager during a special meeting of the County Commissioners.

Shireman Construction of Corydon was hired as construction manager, a move that should expedite work on the project beginning with bid openings in the near future.

"We had two proposals," said Commissioner David Bramer. "We have had discussions and interviews with each of those that submitted a proposal. There are a lot of similarities between the two, and we had interviews because we felt we needed to learn about each of two, but at the end of day, we decided to go with Shireman Construction for the construction manager for the new Jefferson County jail facility."

The other proposal for construction manager had been submitted by Envoy Inc. of Fishers. “Both of them would have been easy to work with but what it really came down to was recent experience in being construction manager for jails,” Bramer said. Each company has been involved in jail projects, but Bramer said Shireman has more recent experience with jail construction through work just finished on the Floyd County Detention Center. He said the Commissioners felt that the more recent jail construction experience provides Shireman a more up-to-date familiarity with what needs to be done for a jail to meet current standards and regulations. The project has been a long process for County Commissioners to get to this point “It will have been four years in August,” Bramer said, adding “it has been a learning process” but the effort was necessary to “make sure the project is done right. We’ve tried to make sure that we’ve got a design so when we go to build it, we can build that design, and we’re not going to have to make a lot of changes because it gets real expensive when it goes from paper to concrete and metal when you want to make changes.” Bramer said hiring a construction manager was just the latest hurdle but one that brings “some satisfaction that we’ve got to this stage. While it’s not an inexpensive project by any stretch, it is going to be something that’s going to do what the sheriff wants it to do and what the people working in the jail want it to do, and it’s going to be functional.” He noted that lack of functionality “is one thing with the old facility that has made things difficult.” In 2017, the state deemed the current Jefferson County Jail uncompliant with state standards due to overcrowding plus the jail lacked having enough beds, toilets and shower facilities and was inadequately spaced.

deputies, emergency medical services, reservists and correctional officers. In other discussions, Studebaker had high praise for the support the schools have received during recent challenging winter weather conditions. “I profusely thank the bus drivers,” adding that they have done “a phenomenal job.” He called Madison’s drivers an “outstanding, professional group of people” and noted it has been a “team effort to gets schools open or closed depending on whatever we have to do. I just want to thank that entire department including (transportation coordinator) Jill Deputy and (assistant transportation coordinator) B.J. Yeager, they have been rock stars this whole year in new positions. They have been outstanding.” Studebaker also praised the corporation’s teachers, aides and everybody who has been “pulling off this miracle keeping us open.” “The custodians with all the cleaning they do, shifting around the different buildings, the shifts we have to do to keep the buildings clean and safe and healthy. At a drop of a hat, the teachers shift at whatever we are asking them to do. They have changed their instructional model in terms of e-learning and virtual. It’s just been phenomenal.” Studebaker said the effort to keep students in the classroom during the pandemic — and inclement weather — extends beyond the school corporation. He applauded the support of Madison Mayor Bob Courtney and Street Superintendent Tony Sorrells and the city’s crew for “work done in keeping the roads clear in helping all the commuters get home through bad weather conditions.” In other business, the board:

to receive information about facility needs and financial information regarding a facility improvement project. Studebaker said this is a notice of hearing on a project which will be funded by bonds not exceeding $5,575,000. He explained that the resolution is a “starting point. It doesn’t commit us to anything but gets the ball rolling.” “We are really in the early aspects of this,” said Yancey. “This is really a work in progress, but as we will get more information we will move forward with it.” In follow-up on Thursday, Ashley Schutte, communications coordinator for the school district, said it’s part of the process that began with work by a Facilities Planning Committee in an overall Strategic Planning process. “Nothing specific has been identified as yet,” she said, and “recommendations from this committee will be coming over the next few months. Last night was just the approval of funding to begin the process on a continuation of facilities improvements throughout the district.”

- Approved purchasing 1,200 student Chromebooks for the 2021-2022 school year for grades 4, 5, 6 and 9 at a total cost of $562,800, which also includes licensing, cases and four years of insurance. The Chromebooks are to be purchased from Trafera LLC. Studebaker noted that Chromebooks the school corporation purchased last March just arrived two weeks ago so “hopefully it’s better this time.”
- Approved transfer of $840,000 from donations received from SuperATV to Education and Textbook Rental to cover the cost of the student fees and textbook rentals, which was previously approved by the board.
- Approved transfer of $200,000 from Operations to Education to cover the excess cost of preschool special education. Additionally, the school board approved a resolution for monthly transfers of $150,000 from the Education Fund to Operation Fund to cover ongoing expenses. The board also approved resolutions for the transfer of money between the school’s Education, Operations and Debt Service funds.

- Approved personnel hirings including: Matt Studebaker for music evening program, Stephen Sullivan as junior high band teacher, Tim Torrance as softball coach, Kristin Mann as assistant softball coach, Don Server Jr. as driver education instruction, and Janet Hertz as assistant girls track coach. Additionally, Gretchen Smith, Cherese Manns, Shelly Murphy-Smith and Lee Ann Cart were hired as Title I tutors. Lydia McRoberts was hired as a cafeteria student cook at Anderson Elementary School and Olivia Phillips was hired as a temporary administrative clerk at the administration building. The board accepted the resignations of Tony Ralston as softball coach, Ebony Inskeep as assistant girls track coach, and Gretchen Smith as school improvement chair.
- Approved payment of $68,715 to Dent Clayton Corporation of Louisville, Kentucky, for work as contractor on the press box at the Madison Consolidated High School football field and a $94,007 payment to Johnson-Melloh Solutions LLC of Indianapolis for work on part of the school corporation’s solar project.
- Approved the following donations: $1,000 from the Madison Junior High School Hugs PTO to the junior high general fund towards purchase of a new academic/co-curricular team picture board; $100 from Red Pepper Restaurant of Madison to the MCHS Art Academy, and a $620 anonymous donation to the MCHS baseball team. Additionally, the MCHS theatre department received a $1,800 grant from the Community Foundation through the Jonathon Menke Endowment.
- Approved an overnight field trip for 15 players from the high school baseball team to Murfreesboro, Tennessee, to participate in a tournament April 1-3. “This trip has actually been in works for a year,” Studebaker said. “They were supposed to go last year, then COVID hit and ended the entire spring sports season last year,” Studebaker said the baseball team has funding to take care of expenses for the trip, and they are hopeful all comes together for the trip this year.

- Approved an application seeking $77,400 from the 2022 Impact Aid Section 7002 Grant, which compensates school districts containing federally owned land (Jefferson Proving Ground) in an attempt to supplement funds lost on property not locally taxed.
- Approved the second reading of revisions to the policy for credits earned by students before they enter ninth grade and approved the second reading of revisions to a policy for retaking a class.
- Approved purchase of three conventional 72-passenger buses and one activity bus from Midwest Transit for a total of $381,756, which includes the trade-in value for four buses. “This is something we budget for every year,” said Yancey. “This is a proactive thing.”
- Approved an amended contract with Kleopfer Lawn Service LLC, at $8,890 for mowing, weed trimming and spraying around new solar panel sites at Anderson Elementary and Deputy Elementary schools. Additionally, it provides for an extra month to cover for a long growing season.
- Studebaker said the school corporation partnered with the Deputy Volunteer Fire Company for installation of a fire hydrant that will be near Deputy Elementary and the fire department’s new building. He said the school corporation is contributing $1,500 — about half the cost of the hydrant.
- “By having that fire hydrant, that whole end of the town is safer as well as the school,” Studebaker said.

KSP offers ‘Pick Three’ to boost recruiting

Effort gives cadets chance to stay closer to home

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT
After graduating thousands of cadets in the agency's first 100 classes, the Kentucky State Police have opted to change things up for Cadet Class 101.
No, the state's largest law enforcement unit won't be shortening or expanding the extensive training all troopers receive before going out to serve and protect in the Commonwealth's 16 posts over 120 counties, but this year's incoming cadets will have an opportunity to stay a little closer to home when they graduate the academy.

That's because the KSP is changing protocol in an effort to allow troopers a post assignment either closer to home or at least in an area where they would like to live and work.
New troopers will have the opportunity to Pick Three posts that they would prefer to be assigned to. In doing so, they will know that when they graduate the academy, they will be assigned to one of their top three selected posts so a trooper can remain closer to home and family or relocate to an area that is personally more desirable.
Sergeant Michael Murriell, KSP Recruitment Branch Commander, thinks the new Pick Three option will be a game changer for recruiting.
In the past, a trooper who resided in Eastern Kentucky could potentially land at a Western Kentucky post upon graduation, said Murriell. It was definitely a concern of many recruits that we met with. The ability to provide assurance to our new recruits that they won't have to pack up their families and relocate to the other end of the state will alleviate those concerns.
Trooper Chad Johnson, public affairs officer for the local Post 5 in Campbellsburg, Kentucky, said concerns over having to relocate away from family has been one of the biggest hurdles to attracting new cadets to the KSP. He said the Pick Three will alleviate a lot of that concern and make being a trooper more attractive to those seeking careers in law enforcement. In the past, highly desirable areas like Post 5 could take troopers years to work the transfers necessary to get back home.

Johnson also noted that Pick Three should also work well with recruiting new cadets from out of state and should make the KSP more attractive to border states like Indiana.
"We welcome applicants from Indiana to apply for our cadet program," said Johnson, noting that the beginning pay for a trooper out of the academy is about $45,000 annually.

Murriell said the deadline to submit applications for Cadet Class 101 is March 26, 2021 and must be submitted to the KSP Recruitment Branch, located at 919 Versailles Road, Frankfort, KY 40601. The targeted start date for the class is October 2021.
Interested applicants should visit www.joinKSP.com to download an application. Other information available on the website includes an outline of the application process, a list of minimum requirements and disqualifications, plus a list of required supporting documents, (physical standards requirements and testing information).

wanting to extend a hand to myself to help me succeed in the community. I can only hope that other people will learn how great it is to be a volunteer for this city."

Boone was born and raised in Madison and has come from a long line of local entrepreneurs and philanthropists. She learned early on from her parents what hard work entails and how to give back. She has not only owned and operated a handful of businesses in Madison but she has also served and continues to serve on boards in the community, such as: the Boys and Girls Club, CASA, GAL, OVO, and most recently rallied fundraising to make Madison's Safe Haven Baby Box a reality. In addition, she continues to work with young adults of the Hanover College Business Scholars Program by mentoring them yearly and teaching them strategic marketing.

Kelley Hoagland was presented with the first ever, Jefferson County Emerging Leader Award. Roberts said Hoagland "is always ready to lend a hand to local organizations and community projects. Kelley offers her time, her patience, and her creativity freely and with joy. She is a 'go-to' leader in our community, where she supports, encourages, and works. She is a wonderful example of how to get things done. She can take an idea and run with it, and see a great outcome."

Hoagland has served as a past volunteer with Big Brothers Big Sisters, a founding member of the Madison Area Arts Alliance, Madison Community Players, former Chamber ambassador, volunteer for the Ohio Theater, and volunteer for many Chamber events. In addition to her volunteer work, she is employed at the Community Foundation.

Greves TV & Appliance was recognized as the Business of the Year. "This business has been a major anchor in Madison's downtown commercial district since 1970, offering an assortment of quality goods and amazing services to customers across the region," said Casey Higdon, Madison service specialist with the Chamber. "The family owned business offers home town customer service while staying current with new technology, trends, and expansion of many price points and product lines. As many locally businesses disappeared from the Main Street landscape, this business continues to recognize the importance of knowing their customers, offering excellent service, and keeping up with the times. They have endured many changes in Madison and they continue to thrive when others have closed or given up to the big box retailers. This business stands out in the community, and consistently supports the Madison area and is involved in community events."

Jerry Wade received the Small Business Person of the Year Award in recognition for his impact on downtown Madison. "I am truly humbled and honored," Wade said. He moved to Madison, renovated the old Lampson Feed Mill, and opened Mad Paddle brewery. "We have people visiting Madison for the first time, just to come to Mad Paddle. That was our goal. Take the old feed mill, bring it back to life and build a destination tourism attraction that could attract business all year long for the City of Madison."

Additionally, he has supported the Madison Music Movement by providing a venue for live music to the public. He is also a business partner with Pizza Uncommon, and has received his artisan distillery permit. He now also serves on the Madison Historic Board.

Girls Inc. of Jefferson County was presented the Nonprofit of the Year Award. The Chamber expressed that the organization was honored because of the impact it has made to deliver life-changing programs and experiences that equip girls to overcome serious barriers to grow up strong, smart, and bold for the past 50 years. Girls Inc. consists of programming, people, and an environment that, together, empowers girls to succeed. Trained staff and volunteers build lasting, mentoring relationships in girls-only spaces that are physically and emotionally safe. Girls receive programming to grow up healthy, educated, independent, and become role models in their community. Girls Inc. of Jefferson County has served our community since 1972 and its impact resonates throughout our community.

In 2020, the Madison Area Chamber of Commerce received two awards from the Indiana Chamber Executives Association: the Website Excellence Award and the Innovation New Idea Award, for their Chamber Cash Mob initiative. The Chamber CASH program premiered in January, with a record of more than $20,000 being purchased in 2020 to be spent in the community. The Chamber also got creative with the Soup Stew Chili & Brew festival and hosted it virtually, along with creating the first ever, Soup Stew Chili & Brew cookbook.

This year, the Chamber will launch a new website which will allow for a more user friendly experience and easier connection to community resources. Members can also expect to see a new retention program, as well as the launch of a Young Professionals group. Additionally, the Chamber is focused on bringing events, roundtable discussions, and membership visits to the community in a safe and productive way.

5 key risks to your retirement and how to avoid them

1. Retirement doesn't mean sitting and fishing, it also means actively managing risks and being able to make needed adjustments. – Steve Dybwad

Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

There are many critical decisions to consider when building your sound retirement roadmap. You may wonder exactly when you should start saving for the day you no longer work. You might also ask yourself questions about how much you should save, how long you might spend in retirement, and how best to spend down your savings, so you don't run out of money.

It's a safe bet that your retirement won't look anything like that of your parents or grandparents. Retirement in the 21st Century is likely to be more active, more expensive, and more prolonged.

Since life expectancies are increasing due to medical and technological advances, you will need to manage the key risks most retirees will face proactively and strategically.

While many pitfalls await you once you start strategizing for retirement, I have identified five key risks for which you must become well-planned. If left unaddressed, these threats could be harmful to your wealth both now and in the future.

What are the five most critical retirement risks?

1. You may live longer

2. Healthcare costs continue to rise. Improvements in pharmaceuticals, innovative new procedures, and medical technology advancements are primarily responsible for increases in lifespans during the past twenty years. However, these improvements come at a cost. In the United States, which has the most expensive healthcare globally, a visit with your primary care practitioner costs an average of $190.00. If you must stay in a hospital, you can expect bills amounting to tens of thousands of dollars. Many Americans still don't realize that Medicare will not pay for every medical procedure you could need as you age. Long-term and memory care are two potential needs for which you must plan.

3. Your money doesn't grow. Seniors in the United States can live twenty, even thirty years or more after retiring. This potential for longevity means that it is essential to have portfolio growth and multiple income streams in retirement. Without steady, reasonable growth, seniors could potentially run out of money well before they run out of life.

4. Inflation gobbles up your cash. Despite what you may hear from the government, inflation is a clear and present danger to retirees. Official inflation numbers don't always reflect reality, either. If you go to the store regularly or pay bills, you know that everyday items have seen price spikes, especially since the beginning of the pandemic. According to the USDA, food prices for meals cooked at home went up 3.5%. Take-away food prices rose 3.4%.

5. It is hard to "get down from the mountain." When you are building up your retirement savings, your objectives and goals differ from your "spend-down" period. The financial advisor who helped you accumulate your wealth may not be as competent at helping you spend it properly. You will probably need a qualified retirement and income specialist to help you disburse your savings wisely. Otherwise, you could wind up running out of money.

Summing it up: Although retiring with enough money to support a healthy, active lifestyle may be challenging, it is achievable. Taking a hard look at the five most pervasive risks to your wealth will help you address them now before they destroy your nest egg. You don't want to plan alone, though. Find a retirement and income specialist who can help you make the wisest decisions about your wealth.

In order to better comply with regulations, the county started paying to ship inmates to other counties and then pay those jails to house Jefferson’s inmates in their jails to reduce overcrowding at the jail in Madison.

Another important action at Thursday’s meeting was approval of a resolution for the lease of the old and new jail by the Jefferson County Building Corporation. Because the state mandates constitutional debt limits for counties, a building corporation must be created to establish a lease/financing mechanism for the project. The building corporation is controlled by the Commissioners and building corporation is a financing entity.

The Commissioners also hired Hzero Engineering of Greendale at a cost of $475 to survey an easement for a sewer line for the new jail facility. Bramer said sewer requirements prevent it from being 90 degrees, and it must be 45 degrees, which he said “means we cut off a little bit of a corner so we have a proposal to do a survey to show us exactly where that needs to be.”

The new jail, expected to cost about $38 million, will be located on 50 acres the county bought on J.A.Berry Lane, approximately one-fourth mile west of Shun Pike and one-third mile east of Papermill Road.

HANOVER ROUNDUP

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

PANTHERS FALL TO TRANSY IN OT

Transylvania outscored Hanover 13-8 in the overtime to pull away for an 89-84 win in men's basketball Thursday in Lexington, Kentucky.

Hanover, which trailed 44-34 at halftime, mounted a rally over the final 20 minutes to force the extra session. The Panthers were facing a 76-71 deficit with just over a minute left in regulation when Josiah Ricketts hit a pair of free throws to close the gap to three. After Hanover forced a turnover, Brice Gilman drilled a 3-pointer with 34 seconds to go to tie the game 76-76 and Mark Albers blocked the game-winning shot to send the game into overtime.

Albers hit a bucket to give Hanover a 78-76 lead seconds into the OT but Lucas Gentry answered with a 3-pointer and Transy never trailed again.

The Pioneers pushed their lead to seven with 30 seconds to go and escaped with the five-point win.

Gilman, a freshman from Clinton, Albers, a senior from Pendleton, and Ricketts, a freshman from New Harmony, all scored 15 points each to lead Hanover while Dawson Estes, a freshman from New Palestine, came off the bench to add 10. Albers also had eight rebounds.

Gentry scored a game-high 42 points on seven 3-pointers to lead Transylvania. Zach Larimore, a junior from Oldham County, added 18 points and Duce Ralls had 10 for the Pioneers (6-6).

Hanover, now 4-4 overall on the season, hosts Transylvania today at Collier Arena. The Panthers then wrap up their abbreviated regular season next week against Anderson, at home on Thursday and on the road next Saturday.

VOLLEYBALL SPLITS WITH EARLHAM

Hanover volleyball split a pair of matches at Earlham on Wednesday.

The Panthers lost the first match 3-1 (23-25, 25-17, 27-25, 25-20) but then rolled to a 3-0 (25-22, 25-13, 25-19) win in the second set.

In the first match, Maddie Edwards, a junior from Jasper, had 12 kills, Kelsey Ketcham, a junior from Mishawaka, had 10 kills, 12 assists and 29 digs, Emma Harmon, a sophomore from Carmel, had seven kills, Amber Miller, a senior from Louisville, had 12 assists and 21 digs, and Emma Rolf, a junior from Lebanon, had 15 digs.

In the second match, Adrienne Vance, a sophomore from Indianapolis, had 10 kills, Ella Reed, a freshman from Lexington, Kentucky, had eight kills, Maura Dankoski, a junior from Fishers, had seven kills, Ketcham had 18 assists and nine digs, Aubrey Walton, a freshman from Linton, had 15 assists and seven digs and Miller had 11 digs.

Hanover, now 8-4 overall and 3-3 in the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference, hosts Rose-Hulman for one match today and heads to Franklin for a pair of matches on Tuesday.

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Living in the shadow of a player as accomplished as Keara Eder can be difficult, but for three years, Jenna Imel has carved out her own niche on the Madison golf team, serving as the Robin to Eder's Batman and helping the Cubs return to their accustomed place atop the sectional standings.

While Eder grabbed most of the headlines, Imel quietly improved her game and emerged as arguably the best player other than Eder in the area. Last Friday, Imel got her reward for that level of play by signing with Franklin College.

"I've been very excited for Jenna and very excited for the program in general because it's the first signing we've had in a while," Madison coach Jake Shockley said. "Jenna's always had the passion to play golf and has always had playing college in her sights. I knew that with her being the worker that she is, I knew that she would get there one day."

There is no player who has improved as much as Imel, who went from being Madison's No. 5 with scores in the 110s as a freshman to shooting in the 80s as a senior. She rarely was able to unseat Eder as medalist, but she was almost always right behind her in the standings.

David Campbell

Madison senior Jenna Imel has signed to play golf at Franklin College.

"She has made tremendous strides each year. She didn't come in with nothing — she had been playing since she was a little girl — but there were nuts and bolts type tweaks that we needed to make," Shockley said. "She has tremendous natural ability with her short game and around the green. She's probably, in my six years, either the first or second-best player I've ever had."

"She was definitely our rock this year. She led very consistently by example and everybody leaned on Jenna's experience a little bit, and even Keara to a certain degree," Shockley added. "She just had that senior leadership, that been-there, done-that mentality."

Playing in college was always a goal for Imel and as her game improved, her chances at reaching the next level increased. But she always had her sights set on Franklin College and when the chance arose to go to the school, she jumped at it.

"I've known that I've wanted to golf at Franklin for a while but after this season, it kind of hit harder than I thought it would," said Imel at a signing ceremony surrounded by friends and family. "When I visiting there, it just felt like home. I just liked the atmosphere and how small it is. They have what a wanted to do (sports management) and I just really wanted to play golf."

"We talked about going to other schools but it was always Franklin for her. She kind of recruited herself to Franklin," Shockley said. "I'm really happy for her because that's the one place she wanted to go."

Shockley believes Imel has every chance to not only be a contributor for the Grizzlies, but to emerge as one of the program's best.

"She needs to transfer her weight and get on her front foot. When she starts transferring her weight consistently, she's dangerous," Shockley said. "Around the greens is nothing for her; she's got immaculate touch. Once the Franklin coach gets her out of the tee box and on that approach shot, she's going to be really dangerous."

While Imel is excited to begin the next stage of her career, she said that she will always cherish her time at Madison.

"My teammates and trying to get better every year, that's my biggest memory," Imel said. "There wasn't ever a day that I didn't enjoy it. I'm going to miss it."

From giving to Grinch

Dear Annie: I have a good one for you, Annie. This past Christmas, I assembled Italian-dinner care packages for two of my neighbors, with jars of my homemade sauce, homemade meatballs, Italian bread and boxes of spaghetti. For one of the neighbors, I also included a nice candle and a throw blanket. She had knee surgery last year, and I wanted her to know I was thinking of her. She has three grown sons so I included a lot of meatballs and sauce. To the other neighbors, I gave just the sauce and meatballs. The young children in that family wrote me a thank-you note.

For one friend, “Sherry,” I made a Christmas tree out of fabric (with lights on it) and a scarf made of pom poms — real pretty. I gave her husband, “Raymond,” an antique truck with small added Christmas trees, like the truck was hauling the trees. I gave another set of friends, “Mary” and “Will,” my crafted tree and truck, too, along with sausage, cheese and crackers.

I got a few gifts from

Sherry and Raymond but nothing from Mary and Will or any of my neighbors. I called and left a voicemail with the ones who did give me a gift and asked to give me a call if they were happy with the gifts I gave them. I never heard a work of thanks from anyone. I wasn’t upset they gave me nothing, but I was hurt and upset that I didn’t even get a thank-you. I did call one couple and let them know I would not be exchanging gifts next year. I have had it, doing for others and receiving nothing in return. How rude people are. I work and I have limited time and still I worked hard on the things I gave them and can’t even get a thank-you. What do you think about that? — No, Thanks

Dear No, Thanks: My advice to your neighbors and friends would be to send thank-you notes when they receive gifts, especially thoughtful homemade gifts like yours. It was inconsiderate of them not to.

But you’re the one who wrote me, so here’s my advice to you. If you want to spare yourself future resentments, give gifts unconditionally or don’t give them at all. You have limited time, as you mentioned, and there are better ways to spend it than inventorying presents and cataloguing grudges.

Dear Annie: I’d like to share my thoughts for “Not Ready for the Earhorn,” who was frustrated with the volume mix of televisions shows: Please, get your hearing checked. I had the same problem with hearing the TV dialogue. I went to the doctor about it and was diagnosed with hearing loss. My hearing aids are Bluetooth and barely noticeable and have improved my quality life. My mother denied a hearing problem, which I think contributed to her decline due to Alzheimer’s. While there is not a direct causal link, I hope that by seeking this solution for my hearing problems, rather than denying that they exist, I can avoid her problem. — Happy to Hear

Dear Happy to Hear: A study from Johns Hopkins found that even mild hearing loss doubles dementia risk. Between that statistic and your firsthand testimonial, I hope those who might be experiencing hearing loss will be encouraged to make an appointment with an audiologist today.

What I love the most

Dear Readers: In celebration of Valentine's Day, I asked you to share what you love most about your partners. And, boy, did you deliver! My inbox was overflowing with touching tributes. It's been such a pleasure sifting through the sweetness, and I'm thankful to each and every one of you who wrote. Below is just a small sampling of some wonderful letters that I received on this topic.

Dear Annie. The easiest question for me to answer is what I love about my husband, Tom. They say the devil is in the details, but I say true love is in the details. Many years ago, my husband bought me the DVD boxed set of the original "Planet of the Apes" movies. Missing was "Beneath the Planet of the Apes." An oversight? No. I had mentioned once that is the one I don't like, so he took it out. He buys me apples, but only Gala and Fuji, because that's what I like. He hollers, "Don't look at the TV!" if there's a spider or something creepy. I could go on and on. It's the details, the little things. He's given me fancy gifts over the years, but what I cherish most is that he listens and he remembers. — Erma S.

Dear Annie: I have been with my partner, Joann, for 41 years. Although we broke up twice earlier on in our relationship, we have been living together for the past 24 years and are very happy, even as she's battled cancer these last three years. What I love most about her is that she helps me be the best version of myself. — Bob K.

Dear Annie: My partner is my hero! There are so many things that I could tell you I love about him, but his generous spirit is definitely key. We met later in life, and only one year after we met, I developed HIV-associated dementia, which became very severe, very fast. By all rights, Chris should have left. My health devastated his life and destroyed us financially. But he stood by me, fought to get me the necessary medical care and helped me through the worst time of my life. And to this day, he has never once complained. It brings me to tears just writing this. I am so eternally grateful for that man, and it is a huge juxtaposition to my previous relationship experiences, which were pretty awful. I would give that man anything if I could, but being disabled, all I can give him is my love and care. Fortunately, he thinks that's the greatest gift he could have. — Chase A.

Dear Annie: I knew I loved my husband the moment I met him when I was 19. His blue eyes melted my heart. I told him I was going to marry him then. We'll have been married 20 years this year. He works so hard for us, even though he has painful physical ailments that would send most people to the emergency room. He's my soulmate. — Anita C.

Dear Annie: My husband and I met in college, almost 50 years ago. He played on the golf team. Twenty years ago, at the age of 49, he was diagnosed with Parkinson's. It was a stunning blow. My wonder boy continues to play golf four or five times a week, though it is a struggle mentally and physically. The sense of humor that drew me to him is still there, and I'm constantly reminded why I married this sweet man, as I witness the grace, courage and positivity that he works so hard on. — Phyllis K.

Torrance named new softball coach at Madison

BY DAVID CAMPBELL
Having spent the past six years coaching two sports — and broadcasting a half-dozen more — Tim Torrance was looking forward to having this spring off for a change and hanging around the house and taking it easy.

But the prospect of coaching his granddaughters proved too good to pass up and just like that, the popular local radio guy was back in the dugout.

Torrance was officially hired as the new head softball coach at Madison Consolidated High School on Wednesday, replacing Tony Ralston, who resigned last month. His daughter, Kristin Mann, will serve on his staff as assistant coach along with Mike Peak, the long-time assistant who has been with the program for nearly two decades.

“It really happened quickly. Everything just kind of spiraled in a hurry,” Torrance said of the hiring. “I wasn’t sure I was going to apply and then my daughter said that I needed to and I started thinking about it and thought it was a good idea. I’ve coached sports in every school year for the past six years, it was going to be nice to have a season off, but I’m excited for the opportunity. It’s a great school and great facilities. I can’t wait to get started.”

Torrance, who graduated from Madison in 1978, spent six seasons as the head softball coach at Shawe Memorial. The Hilltoppers never won more than four games in a season and went just 12-82 over his tenure as Torrance fought low player numbers each season. After last season was canceled due to COVID-19, Torrance decided to step away.

Torrance, who also spent four years as the head volleyball coach at Shawe, had resigned from that position in December 2019.

He didn’t stay away from coaching that sport long either, joining coach Camille Crim’s staff at Madison as freshman volleyball coach this past season.

A big reason for joining the Madison volleyball team was to get a chance to spend time with his granddaughters, senior Immi Mann and sophomore Cam Mann, who moved in from Owen Valley High School the year before. The sisters play softball as well and when the head coaching job opened, Kristen urged Torrance to throw his hat into the ring. Torrance applied and two weeks later, he had the job.

While he got a chance to be around them during the volleyball season, the Torrance family is a softball family at heart and the diamond is a special place.

“One of the main reasons I left Shawe was because I had a chance to go to Madison to coach volleyball was because of my grandkids, to reconnect with them,” Torrance said. “I’ve got six grandkids in all and two others are in junior high and play a lot of sports so it’s a chance to catch up with them as well.”

Madison Athletic Director Joe Bronkella was thrilled to get a coach of Torrance’s experience to take over the Cub program.

“We had a number of interested candidates but Tim’s experience, passion for the sport, and desire for long-term continued growth and development of our program and student-athletes put him at the top of our list,” Bronkella said. “Tim came highly recommended when we had an opening on our volleyball staff this past fall. He fit in right away with our volleyball staff, worked well with our athletes, and has an approach that we feel is a great fit for the culture we are cultivating within Madison athletics.”

Like all spring programs around the state, Madison did not play last year and Torrance admits that he’s not sure what to expect this spring. The Cubs went 11-17 in 2019 but have since graduated several players from that team. Madison won at least 10 games in each of the previous four seasons but never posted a winning record.

Conditioning is currently underway and official practice begins on March 8.
